

ment in the oil and gas sector, the maritime and ancillary operations sectors, construction and infrastructure development, has motivated us to constitute a team of experts in these domains to design these training modules primarily to encourage First Nations; racially disadvantaged, visible minorities and newcomers to Canada, who may be well suited for services that emanate from naturally occurring resources exploitation.

We have tailored these training modules to the exact labour needs of these sectors that will only require very limited on-site or on-board practical safety and familiarization to complete their readiness for the job. We will work with industry actors to include their specific theoretical safety training to our operational training modules so that they will engage only for the familiarization prior to commencement of work. We have christened this initiative; TRAINING FOR INCLUSION.

International Outreach and Humanitarian Assistance

We have established a corresponding branch in Cameroon to assist with technical co-operation and information gathering to assist with our activities that we envisage on the continent of Africa. We will start by assisting the youths, especially women.

Using agriculture, by training the youths, in modern agricultural methods and techniques, and equipping them with the materials and resources required to carry on modern agriculture with minimum supervision from BetterFuture Global. Their revenue will be calculated from the market value of the end product less the cost of transformation and distribution from the gross amount of their yields that will be collected.

Eradication of poverty, zero hunger, good health and well-being, gender equality and greater empowerment of the woman, responsible consumption and production, climate action, etc. initially, which fall within the UN Sustainable Development Goals, constitute the major portion of the activities, leading to quality education and health.

OBJECTIVE
BEST & PROFESSIONAL
HEADLINE

Globalization and cultural diversity that characterize modern societies; the need for inclusiveness in social, professional, political, economic, religious, moral, regulatory activities, etc.; the prevalence of latent health problems like heart diseases, diabetes, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, obesity, etc. that are potentially deadly though they can be prevented; poverty and economic hardships that characterize most of Africa and other regions of the world, etc. have motivated the creation and implementation of this system of interaction between sports for health and recreation in modern advanced communities, training and coaching for unemployed citizens to begin new careers, while generating material, technical, intellectual, financial support and guidance, to assist disadvantaged and disenfranchised citizens develop new skills, talents and intellectual capacities to begin new or expand their careers.

ACTIVITIES

SPORTS FOR HEALTH AND RECREATION - SOCCER.

Bringing together people of different cultures, backgrounds, and ethnic groups, who are professionals or potential professionals in different works of life and social affiliations, who do not have the possibility to create homogenous groups to participate in group sports activities at convenient schedules, to take this advantage to subscribe to any or all of the sports activities, according to the particular time and location which is most convenient, to be able to sustain good health, relaxation, recreation. This will enhance the initialization of other social relations and interactions that foster community-based integration, alleviation of cultural homophily, encourage cultural, social, political, economic inclusiveness in diversity, community integration and communities' interactions, etc.

The same approach will be replicated for children for the purpose of creating an atmosphere of cultural interaction at an early age while detecting and developing soccer talents and building enthusiasm in the game.

A) - INDOOR WINTER SOCCER

We have secured indoor soccer facilities that will be available to participants to play soccer regularly through an APP that is being developed for this purpose. The app will direct participants to the closest and available facility and will pair the participants in various teams for the soccer season. While there would be no significant age, sex limitation, participation for adults will be encouraged and privileged from 21 years and children from the age seven, to ensure they can be properly guided and trained. Children will have the opportunity to discover their soccer talent through dedicated mentors that will start early development in these talents.

B) - OUTDOOR SUMMER SPORTS

Our team of trained experts who will coordinate the indoor games during the winter will select and pair the participants into teams that will be able to train together and participate in their various disciplines on regular outdoor facilities during the summer. There will be regular summer league games and fun tournaments among the teams all through the summer period. There will be inter-city tournaments and periodic one-day tournaments that will be organized in different cities that will bring teams together to play, interact and relax. This will culminate in intra-provincial and inter-provincial sports recreation tournaments in collaboration with the various authorities in charge of the various sports disciplines.

CULTURAL DIVERSITY AND RACIAL INTEGRATION PLATFORM

As the most watched sports globally, with the most prestigious international tournament; the soccer(football)world cup, people of all races are interested, watch and participate in the game at all levels. We have started with soccer so that it will provide a forum wherein participants will become ambassadors of their communities and will act as representatives through whom we can gain meaningful access to their various communities and cultural associations for cultural diversity sensitization programs and initiatives.

This platform will also serve as a forum for collaboration with other organizations that participate in cultural diversity and integration, racial inclusion, First Nations' welfare and integration, visible minority social issues at all levels, to exploit, for the purpose of creating partnership schemes that we are already able and willing to offer, for joint sensitization campaigns in fulfillment of the purposes of advancing cultural diversity, first nations', racial integration, and minority, and social integration issues.

CULTURAL DIVERSITY AND COMMUNITY INTEGRATION SOCCER TOURNAMENTS

We organize summer outdoor soccer tournaments known as Cultural Diversity and Community Integration Soccer Tournaments. These soccer tournaments will bring together soccer teams from different cultural communities in London. The main purpose of this idea is to bring different cultures together for a complete day, to interact and enjoy the soccer tournament, discover the social qualities of other cultures that will positively impact on the perception of other cultures and subsequent acceptance and integration of cultures and peoples.

There is special interaction, entertainment and soccer talent discovery for kids who are invited and will accompany their parents who will be participating in the tournaments. We hope to build the same spirit of cultural interaction and integration in kids so that they will start learning to understand and accept other cultures and peoples.

PROFESSIONAL TRAINING AND SKILLS DEVELOPMENT FOR BACK-TO-WORK

The unconscious exclusion of First Nations' peoples, visible minorities, racially disadvantaged as well as new-comers to Canada in the economic cycle in general and the common heritage of mankind in particular; natural underground mineral resources and petroleum, the seas, ports and maritime, etc. as a consequence of lack of sensitization, training, skills development, motivation and coaching, to equip them with the skills and ability to find gainful employment.
